The event began with a symposium on "Liquid Biopsy - Changing the way we manage cancer" by Dr Anurag Mehta and his team comprising of Drs Moushumi S, Amit Verma, Ullas Batra and Nuzhat Husain.

This was followed by a spirited debate on "Printed textbooks are becoming obsolete before they are published" between Dr Sandhya Sundaram who spoke for the motion and Dr Harsh Mohan who spoke against the motion. The session was moderated by Dr Anita Borges with a pre and a post-debate poll, won by Dr Harsh Mohan.

The third session was the Keynote Address by Dr. S R Shivayogi Bhusnurmath who spoke on "Vision for a digital platform for Pathology education in India" which was very well received.

The last was rather an unconventional Fireside Chat on the cold Sunday evening titled "All roads lead to Room 000" by Dr Kalpana Swaminathan and Dr. Ishrat Syed, Paediatric Surgeons and authors of the book "Room 000: Narratives of the Bombay Plague", published under the name Kalpish Ratna (an amalgam of their names).

The concluding session moderated by Dr. D N Lanjewar provided a platform for all delegates to reconnect, share ideas and reminiscence the past which concluded around 10:00 PM with the hope of a face to face get together sometime very soon.
